Gary Proudlock is the managing director at Surrey-based accountants Vista Partners and is particularly experienced in advising companies in the care sector.

Following two years with the Inland Revenue and two years in industry, Gary joined a seven partner firm based in Dorking where he qualified as a Chartered Tax Adviser and progressed through to a management position.

Within this role, Gary led a team advising owner-managed businesses and high net worth individuals.

In the late 1980's Gary left the role to join BDO Binder Hamlyn where he led a team acting for medium-sized businesses and worked on serious tax investigations, corporate reconstructions, management buy-outs and corporate sales and acquisitions.

In 1994 Gary joined Alfred Simmons and Co (now Vista Partners) progressing to partner in 1995, before becoming Managing Director in 2006.

Gary is able to speak on a range of issues affecting the care sector, particularly how companies can tackle the current funding crisis facing the sector, including putting in robust financial models and supporting efficient, cost-effective running of services to underpin future growth and development.

He is also able to advise on the ever evolving environment for fee funding, changes in the sector's structure, including the break-up of some of major care providers and those arising from financial pressures on privately owned and smaller groups, as well as complex compliance requirements.
